ABOUT US

Your final goodbye to a loved one should be as special as the people themselves.

Brooks pride themselves on providing a personal service tailored to each family's needs.

Whether the funeral is a simple, private family affair or a grand public event, your funeral arranger is available to guide you through the whole process and perhaps provide ideas that you may not have thought of.

Many people find final closure by having their loved one spend their last night at home with them. This enables them to say their final personal goodbyes. At Brooks, we encourage the mourning process to be as personal, individual as grief is, so be it this request, or any other, please discuss your wishes, and we will do our utmost to facilitate them.

The Next step

We are here to make the funeral arrangements easier. You can come to us even before registering the death, we recommend getting together with us as soon as possible. This will start the process with our guidance.

Arranging the Funeral

The following is designed to help you before you make the funeral arrangements. We will guide you through every step of arranging the funeral for your loved one.

Below are the questions we will ask you when arranging a funeral:

- Is the service a cremation or burial? (if burial, which churchyard or cemetery?)
- Where would you like the service to be held?
- Is the service religious, civil or humanist?
- What music and/ or hymns would you like?
- Would you like an order of service printed?
- Would you like us to give out name cards at the funeral? This is for people to write their names and a personal message on if they wish
- Funeral cortege to leave: From the deceased or family home, from our chapel of rest or meet at the place of service?
- Do you require any limousine(s)? in each limousine there is room for six passengers.
- If cremation, what do you intend to do with the ashes?
- Will you be having flowers? If so you can see our full list of flowers on our website.
- Will you be donating to a charity?
- Do you require an Obituary to be placed in either the local or the national newspaper?
- Type of coffin?
- Would you like your loved one to be dressed in a shroud (which is provided by us) or their own clothes?
- If your loved one is wearing jewellery, is it to remain on, or to be removed?
